FALL 2015

WORKSHOPS & SEMINARS

The Center for Private Security and Safety is dedicated to the professionalization of the private security industry offering short-term segment training in both resident and online formats. By having the invaluable link between our academic resources and private security industries, the Center also publishes a peer-reviewed journal, produces relevant white papers, monitors and advises on changes to particular state industry mandates and contributes to the development of best practices for the private security industry at the local, state, national and international levels.

Concepts of Access Control Design

More than the velvet rope, students will learn how to integrate manpower, infrastructure and technology in creating effective access control solutions for buildings and compounds. We examine design philosophies and assumptions, types and functions of access control from vehicular to pedestrian control points, general layouts and determining supporting infrastructure requirements. The “how to” of barrier selection, effects of lighting on physiologic and psychological behavior, and the integration of electronic security systems are considered in detail. Discussions on incorporating access control as part of an agency’s comprehensive security plan system round out the curriculum. Upon completion students will be able to draw up plans that provide efficient and safe solutions for access control.
