   _____100 Level  ___X_200 Level  _____300 Level  ____400 Level

   Please provide a brief rationale for why the course is at the level:

   This course will serve as the introductory course for the U.S. Latino/a Literature minor. It will cover the foundational authors in the field and provide students with an overview of the important literary tendencies, conventions, and movements. The objective is to prepare students, in general terms, for more specified courses in the minor.

   b. Three letter course prefix to be used (i.e. ENG, SOC, HIS, etc.): ____LIT________
4. Course description as it is to appear in the College Bulletin. (Keep in mind that this is for a student audience and so should be clear and informative; please write in complete sentences; we suggest not more than 75 words.)

   For over a hundred years U.S. Latino/a writers have produced a wide array of fiction. This course tracks that literature from its foundations to contemporary works. Starting with a 19th century author such as Maria Amparo Ruiz de Burton and culminating with contemporary writers like Pulitzer Prize winner Junot Diaz, this course examines the different literary themes, styles, and social concerns Latino/a writers explore in their fiction. Thus, this course presents a comparative portrait of the various roots, beginnings, and trajectories of U.S. Latino/a literature. Overarching issues include gender, race, class, diaspora, bilingualism, violence, and community.

5. Course Prerequisites or co-requisites (Please note: All 200-level courses must have ENG 101 and all 300 & 400-level courses must have ENG 102/201 as prerequisites):

   Eng 101 and 201.

   c. Enrollment(s): 18; 15.
   d. Prerequisites(s): Eng 101

8. Rationale for the course (will be submitted to CUNY in the Chancellor’s Report). Why should John Jay College offer this course? (Explain briefly, 1-3 paragraphs.)

   This course focuses on the foundational texts of U.S. Latino/a literature. It sets the ground for a wide-ranging understanding of a tradition formed over the last hundred years, while preparing students for more specified classes to follow. Thus, it will initiate students into the genres, styles, and themes that characterize U.S. Latino/a literatures. From the street realism of Piri Thomas, to the hybrid narratives of Gloria Anzaldua, to the wondrous historical fiction of Junot Diaz, this course presents an overview of a robust literary heritage. With Latino/a students making up close to half of the John Jay student body, this course takes on added academic significance. In exposing our students to the literary accomplishments of one our nation’s fastest-growing populations (one fourth of all children in the United States are currently of Latino/a heritage), we build a more nuanced comprehension of our cultural and national identity. The ample Latino/a presence, along with an important body of literature, makes this course vital to the curriculum of the College and to the intellectual growth of our students. In addition, this course will promote pedagogical objectives commensurate with goals of literary study, including: critical thinking; cultural analysis; improvement of writing and language skills; development of close reading practices; understanding of historical and political contexts; and multicultural awareness.

9. Course learning objectives:

1. Gain an overview of the foundational texts in U.S. Latino/a literature, poetry, and drama and apply the fundamental concepts and methods to survey the role of literary, legal, ethical, psychoanalytic, cultural, and political discourses in shaping their understanding of U.S. Latino/a literatures from a variety of historical periods.
2. Analyze and explain one or more major themes of U.S. history and literature from more than one informed perspective to better understand themes evident in the writing of different Latino/a ethnic groups.
3. Evaluate how indigenous populations, slavery, and immigration have shaped the development of the United States and impacted U.S. Latino/a social experience and literary production.
4. Analyze and discuss common institutions or patterns of life in contemporary U.S. society and how they influence, or are influenced by, race, ethnicity, class, gender, sexual orientation, belief, or other forms of social differentiation.
5. Students will gather, interpret, and assess information from a variety of sources and points of view and demonstrate close reading, writing, and analytical skills.
6. Evaluate evidence and arguments critically or analytically.
7. Students will produce well-reasoned written or oral arguments using evidence to support conclusions and implement the key elements and terms of literature, such as tone, point of view, figurative language, and plot structure in their analysis of literature that synthesize U.S. Latino/a literary and theoretical texts in a cohesive manner.

b. Information literacy objectives:

i. Does the course require students to locate, evaluate and use information to complete assignments? Please describe what you expect them to do.

Students will be required, for their final paper, to locate, retrieve, and evaluate secondary sources from scholarly online databases such as Project Muse, JSTOR, Ebscohost, Academic Search Premier, Latinostories.com, La Bloga.com, and Gale Literature Resource Center.

ii. Will students be directed to use specific information tools other than class readings – e.g. specific library databases, specific web sites, specific reference books? Please identify.
iii. How & where in the class calendar will students be taught in class how to use these information tools?

During the first two weeks of class and again at the end of the semester to prepare for final paper: students will be taught how to access databases, indexes, and be directed to pertinent websites.

d. How do the above learning objectives relate to the objectives of the program, major or minor?)

The learning objectives are commensurate with those of the English minor as well as other U.S. Latino/a literature minors around the country.

e. Assessment:
How will students demonstrate that they have achieved these course objectives?

Although different professors will shape assessment to their own preferences, possible means of assessment include short reading quizzes, tests, journals, several short papers, longer papers—including drafts, and a substantial research paper that demands the students situate texts within an existing critical or literary argument. Students may also be asked to do group presentations, lead discussion, or generate topics for in-class consideration.

10. Recommended writing assignments
Indicate the types of writing assignments this course would require, as well as the number of pages of each type. (Writing assignments should satisfy the College’s guidelines for Writing Across the Curriculum. Go to http://www.jjay.cuny.edu/undergraduatestudies/ and click the link for Writing Across the Curriculum.)

While professors will approach the course differently students will write two formal essays and a longer final paper. Other writing assignments may include journals, quizzes, tests, or short response papers. For the first formal essay (5 pages), students will choose from a list of possible topics or develop their own (with professor’s approval). Their short essay will require a clear thesis, textual support, and close analysis of selected passages with the inclusion of theoretical material to further buttress their arguments. The final essay (10 pages) will require students to compare two novels from the syllabus, develop a clear, defensible thesis, and incorporate textual evidence. They will also be required to draw from several theoretical articles to inform their analysis of the novel. Both essays will include pre-writing assignments including a working thesis statement, outline, rough draft, and peer review.

Latino/as especially on the Western part of the United States; and the longstanding stream of Latino/a immigrants and their growing role in the construction of U.S. literature, culture, and identity.

- Explain and evaluate the role of the United States in international relations.
- Identify and differentiate among the legislative, judicial, and executive branches of government and analyze their influence on the development of U.S. democracy.

An important component to U.S. Latino/a literature is the emphasis on systemic, social, and political violence. Students will analyze, write about, and discuss how differing ethnic/racial/gendered/sexual identities shape U.S. society. They will also contemplate complex social processes like discriminatory practices, burdensome living spaces (ghettos), bilingualism, anti-immigrant sentiment, labor exploitation, and other social and institutional patterns U.S. Latino/as have encountered in the United States.

- Analyze and discuss common institutions or patterns of life in contemporary U.S. society and how they influence, or are influenced by, race, ethnicity, class, gender, sexual orientation, belief, or other forms of social differentiation.

Grading and Requirements:
There are three basic requirements for this course – attendance, participation, and written assignments.

Consistent attendance and timely arrival to class is necessary in order to pass this course. Three absences will result in lowering of grade; and four or more in automatic failure. Three or more latenesses will also adversely affect your grade. Attendance will make up 10% of your final grade.

Participation includes the completion of course reading assignments and active involvement in class discussions including comments, opinions, responses, and questions. Because participation is so important to the success of individual learning and the atmosphere of the class it will consist of 15% of your final grade.

Written assignments must be completed by the end of the semester in order to pass this course. Any late papers will automatically drop a grade. The average marks of your journals will make up 25% of your final grade, while your three papers will make up 50%.

NOTABLE DUE DATES:
Papers:
WEEK SIX: Paper #1 Due – 5 pages.
WEEK ELEVEN: Paper #2 Due – 5 pages.
FINALS WEEK: Final Paper Due – 5-7 pages.

Expectations:
- You are expected to behave in a mature, respectful manner in class. This means that you are alert and engaged, your cell phone/ipod/blackberry/camera is turned off and put away, you are not eating (drinks are okay), and you treat all members of the class politely. If you do not behave in this manner, you will be asked to leave class (which will result in a lateness on your attendance), and your grade will be affected.

- You write four short papers as described in the “Grading and Requirements” above.

- You will bring the appropriate texts to class.
For reading ease, assignments should be typed and double-spaced, in 12 point font, and black ink.

If you do not show up to class when a paper is due your grade will be dropped each class you fail to bring the paper in (for example, A to A-; B to B-, etc.).

Your assignment is considered late if it is not turned in when I collect it in class. If you expect to be absent or late when an assignment is due, give it to me ahead of time or give it to a friend to turn in.

COLLEGE POLICY ON PLAGIARISM:

Plagiarism is the act of presenting another person’s ideas, research or writings as your own. The following are some examples of plagiarism, but by no means is it an exhaustive list:

- Copying another person’s actual words without the use of quotation marks and footnotes attributing the words to their source;
- Presenting another person’s ideas or theories in your own words without acknowledging the source;
- Using information that is not common knowledge without acknowledging the source;
- Failing to acknowledge collaborators on homework and laboratory assignments.

Internet plagiarism includes submitting downloaded term papers or part of term papers, paraphrasing or copying information from the Internet without citing the source, and “cutting and pasting” from various sources without proper attribution. (Undergraduate Bulletin p. 167).
