The population of the United States is perhaps the most diverse in the world, incorporating peoples from every corner of the earth with a wide range of beliefs, histories, life styles, and goals. Sometimes this diversity has been tolerated, but at other times it has created tension, conflict, and even violence. Drawing on texts from the humanities and the social sciences, this interdisciplinary course will explore the various ways that difference—racial, ethnic, economic, educational, sexual orientation, gender, disability, religious, linguistic, and regional—has been constructed in the USA.

Professors Kofi Scott (Law) and Chris Campanioni (English)

Students taking this course can apply 3 credits towards any one of the following options:

- US Experience in its Diversity (Gen Ed, Flexible Core)
- Minor in Interdisciplinary Studies
