This course examines the relationships between law and literature. We will study the ways in which Latina/o literature not only responds to the law, but comments on its inequitable practices within the community. In addition to reading novels, poetry, and drama, students will read court cases, law reviews, and literary analysis in order to analyze the way Latina/o literature exposes contradictions in the legal system. Topics covered may include the legal construction of illegality, the

Fulfills requirements for:
- GEN ED justice core: Struggle for Justice and Equality in the U.S. (300-level)
- Major in Latin American and Latina/o Studies (BA)
- Minor in Latin American & Latina/o Studies
- Elective

If you experience any difficulty registering, please call the Department of Latin American and Latina/o Studies at 212-237-8749 or visit the department in room 8.63.00