devon Kaat is an undergraduate student from south los angeles, currently pursuing a bachelor's in afro-american studies at john jay college. she was born in brooklyn and currently resides in the bronx with her three-year-old son. devon has always had an interest in criminal justice and policy, and particularly in racial justice and equality. in the summer of 2019, devon was accepted into a crime analytics research program under the tutelage of dr. bruce miller. he has been researching and studying international gang violence and policy. specifically, she has studied the effects that gang violence has on the community, as well as any implications for educational policy. her research will look into the effects of gang violence and its relation to the educational experiences of children. additionally, she is working with the mta and will be investigating the effects that gang violence has on the mta's ability to provide a safe and secure environment for its employees and the public.

Emilia Fittipaldi is a senior at john Jay college majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. she is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa Honors Society and is the vps of Diversity and Inclusion on the Student Senate. she is currently active in the muzzle club and is a member of the National Model United Nations. she co-founded in 2016, the Bronx chapter of active minds, a suicide prevention organization. Emilia's research will focus on the impacts of police militarization on communities of color. her research will be conducted under the tutelage of dr. Erica Greenberg's forensic Psychology lab. She will examine the relationship between law enforcement and community relations. She will also conduct interviews with community members, law enforcement officials, and advocacy groups.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville college majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. she graduated with a degree in criminal justice and a minor in Psychology from john Jay college of criminal justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder's research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder's research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Emilia Fittipaldi is a senior at John Jay College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa Honors Society and is the VPS of Diversity and Inclusion on the Student Senate. She is currently active in the Muzzle Club and is a member of the National Model United Nations. In 2016, she co-founded in the Bronx chapter of Active Minds, a suicide prevention organization. Emilia’s research will focus on the impacts of police militarization on communities of color. Her research will be conducted under the tutelage of Dr. Erica Greenberg’s forensic psychology lab. She will examine the relationship between law enforcement and community relations. She will also conduct interviews with community members, law enforcement officials, and advocacy groups.

Emilia Fittipaldi is a senior at John Jay College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa Honors Society and is the VPS of Diversity and Inclusion on the Student Senate. She is currently active in the Muzzle Club and is a member of the National Model United Nations. In 2016, she co-founded in the Bronx chapter of Active Minds, a suicide prevention organization. Emilia’s research will focus on the impacts of police militarization on communities of color. Her research will be conducted under the tutelage of Dr. Erica Greenberg’s forensic psychology lab. She will examine the relationship between law enforcement and community relations. She will also conduct interviews with community members, law enforcement officials, and advocacy groups.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Emilia Fittipaldi is a senior at John Jay College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She is a member of the Phi Delta Kappa Honors Society and is the VPS of Diversity and Inclusion on the Student Senate. She is currently active in the Muzzle Club and is a member of the National Model United Nations. In 2016, she co-founded in the Bronx chapter of Active Minds, a suicide prevention organization. Emilia’s research will focus on the impacts of police militarization on communities of color. Her research will be conducted under the tutelage of Dr. Erica Greenberg’s forensic psychology lab. She will examine the relationship between law enforcement and community relations. She will also conduct interviews with community members, law enforcement officials, and advocacy groups.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.

Erika Diaz is a junior at Manhattanville College majoring in Criminal Justice and Psychology. She graduated with a degree in Criminal Justice and a minor in Psychology from John Jay College of Criminal Justice. She is currently working as a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context. She is currently a research assistant in Dr. Emily Holder’s research project on The Role of Gender/Race Wage Parity in the CJS context.