The individual meetings with Bettina were a tremendous stress-reliever, partly because after every meeting I left feeling much more confident and happier. Whether it was a mock presentation training, revision of monthly journals to improve my writing, or just some talk about life in a pandemic – all of it helped. I felt I had someone to express my feelings to, and because of this I was able to produce much better work.

- Conduct research/creative work of your interest for one year with a faculty mentor.
- Join a cohort of peers and connect to the research community at John Jay.
- Become adept at presenting projects professionally and present your work at the annual Research & Creativity Expo.

In sum, this experience taught me many things about myself—as a person and a scholar. I am so impressed with everyone’s work in the cohort. It gives me great pleasure to have been surrounded by so many talented and inspiring people during this experience. I look forward to continue sharing my work at conferences.
