New Course Proposal Form

Date Submitted ___3/15/15_________________

When completed, email the proposal form in one file attachment for UCASC consideration and scheduling to kkilloran@jjay.cuny.edu.

1. a. Department(s) or program(s) proposing this course__Art and Music____________

b. Name and contact information of proposer(s) _Erin Thompson________
   Email address(es) ___ethompson@jjay.cuny.edu____________
   Phone number(s) ___646-549-1545___________________________

2. a. Title of the course ___Art and Myth in the Ancient World____________

   b. Abbreviated title (not more than 20 characters including spaces to appear on student transcripts and in SIMS) ____Art & Myth in Ancient World________________

   c. Level of this course _____100 Level __ X __200 Level ___300 Level ____400 Level

   Please provide a brief rationale for why the course is at the level:

   Students will build on their skills of general art analysis, learned in a required pre-requisite Art course, in order to engage in a more focused study of the art of the ancient world. While lower level Art courses require students to read a textbook, this course will also draw on articles and excerpts from books, which present more challenging language and thought. Students will also be presented with arguments for different interpretations or approaches to the subject matter. The assignments require students to practice and develop skills introduced in 100-level classes, namely, research, analysis, writing, and presentation-development. Students will be able to choose their own areas for research, with guidance from the instructor and within the parameters of the assignments.

   d. Course prefix to be used (i.e. ENG, SOC, HIS, etc.): ___ART____________

3. Rationale for the course (will be submitted to CUNY in the Chancellor’s Report). Why should John Jay College offer this course? (Explain briefly, 1-3 paragraphs.)

As the Department of Art & Music moves toward submission of an art major, we are developing a curricular program that includes advanced coursework. The proposed course will aid in this initiative by providing students, both majors and non-majors, with the opportunity to study in depth the art of the ancient world – a major area of art history in which the College currently has no offerings.

4. Course description as it is to appear in the College Bulletin. (Keep in mind that this is for a student audience and so should be clear and informative; please write in complete sentences; we suggest not more than 75 words.)

This course uses mythology and art to offer an introduction to the history of various ancient cultures, which may include Greece, Rome, the Ancient Near East, and Egypt, as well as other ancient worlds. Students will learn about ancient myth in its historical context to understand that images and tales that might seem like children’s bedtime stories were actually powerful forces that communicated the cultural values that shaped the history of how people lived and died: how they fell in love, judged criminals, conducted wars, constructed their racial and ethnic ideas, and thought about the origin and end of the world.

5. Course Prerequisites or co-requisites (Please note: All 200-level courses must have ENG 101 and all 300 & 400-level courses must have ENG 102/201 as prerequisites):

   ENG 101 and any Art course.

6. Number of:
   a. Class hours __3__
   b. Lab hours __0__
   c. Credits __3__

7. Has this course been taught on an experimental basis?

   ____ No __X__ Yes. If yes, then please provide:
   a. Semester(s) and year(s): Fall 2015
   b. Teacher(s): Erin Thompson
   c. Enrollment(s): 18

8. Learning Outcomes (approximately 3-5 or whatever is required for mapping to the Gen Ed outcomes). What will the student know or be able to do by the end of the course? How do the outcomes relate to the program’s (major; minor) outcomes?

   - Demonstrate knowledge of formative events, ideas, and works of art from ancient history
   - Analyze the significance of major developments in ancient history and thought
   - Differentiate multiple perspectives on the same subject

15. Faculty - Who will be assigned to teach this course? __Erin Thompson___________

16. Is this proposed course similar to or related to any course, major, or program offered by any other department(s)? How does this course differ?

  __X__ No
  _____Yes. If yes, what course(s), major(s), or program(s) is this course similar or related to? With whom did you meet? Provide a brief description.

The English Department offers a course, LIT 360, Myth in Literature, with the following course description:

What is myth? What function does it have for individuals, societies, and nations? How does it work to communicate ideas about justice, heroism, identity, and humanity? This course will investigate such questions through a close study of ancient myths from a variety of cultures, such as Egyptian, Yoruban, Aztec, Ancient Greek, and Roman. We will study the myths in their cultural contexts as well as their cross-cultural reception in a variety of literary works from antiquity to modern times.

I consulted with Professor Melinda Powers, who teaches Myth in Literature, to assure that the proposed course would not be overly similar. The courses are not similar for a variety of reasons, including: the proposed course focuses on artworks, not texts; the proposed course does not cover cultures outside of the ancient Mediterranean, unlike the existing course; the proposed course focuses on stories of gods and heroes, not mythology as a whole; mythology is an extremely broad subject area that admits of multiple courses; and the proposed course is a 200-level, while the existing course is a 300-level.

17. Did you consult with department(s) or program(s) offering similar or related courses or majors?
   ___ Not applicable
   ___ No
   _X__ Yes. If yes, give a short summary of the consultation process and results.

   See above, at Question 16.

18. Will any course be withdrawn, if this course is approved?
   _X__ No
   ___ No
   ___ Yes. If yes, number and name of course(s) to be withdrawn.

19. Approvals:

   Roberto Visani
   Name of Chair giving approval, Proposer’s Department

   Roberto Visani
   Name of Major or Minor Coordinator giving approval (if necessary)

   N/A
   Name of Chair or Major Coordinator, Affiliated Department giving approval (if necessary)

<th>Students will demonstrate their knowledge of formative events, ideas, and works of art from ancient history through their performance on the midterm and final examinations. Each examination will consist of three short essay questions that will require students to demonstrate that they can apply the fundamental concepts and methods of art history, such as the identification and analysis of subject matter, iconography, and style, to identify and discuss the relations between individual artworks and the societies in which they operated; in particular, their essays will apply the methodologies of art theory and criticism as vehicles for visual critique and analysis of the representation of myth.</th>

<td>Students will analyze the significance of major developments in the use of mythology from the ancient to the modern world in the “Modern Myth” assignment, in which they will choose a movie or another visual artwork that retells a myth from one of the cultures covered by the class (for example, the 1997 Disney movie “Hercules”) and will write at least a 5 page essay comparing the modern version to the visual depictions of that myth in the originating culture, analyzing the changes made to the story in the modern version. They will be directed to ask themselves why they think these changes were made and how do the changes make the myth better fit modern culture.</td>

<td>Students will differentiate multiple perspectives on the same subject in two assignments. In the “Afterlife Imagery” assignment, they will think about the ways in which burial images and beliefs about what happens after death have changed and the ways in which they have remained the same. Students will visit either Green-Wood Cemetery, Woodlawn Cemetery, or another cemetery or burial place pre-approved by the instructor, and then will choose and photograph an image-rich monument and write at least a 2 page essay describing the imagery, explaining what it tells the viewer about the afterlife, and comparing the imagery and afterlife beliefs to those of one of the ancient cultures covered by the class. Students will thus differentiate ancient and modern perspectives on death, burial, and the afterlife. In the “Material Sources for Ancient Myth at the Metropolitan Museum” assignment, students will visit the Metropolitan Museum of Art and take a self-guided field trip, completing a mythological “scavenger hunt” by following the instructions on a handout. Students will then find and photograph 1) a work of art that depicts a myth about a god or hero from a culture other than the cultures covered by the class and 2) another work of art from one of the cultures covered by the class that depicts a similar mythological story, and will write at least a 2 page essay contrasting the way in which these artworks show the myth and the way in which their different viewers would have experienced or used the objects on which the myth is show. Students will thus differentiate the perspectives each of the chosen cultures has on the issues addressed by the chosen myth.</td>

Art and Myth in the Ancient World

Course Description: This course uses mythology and art to offer an introduction to the history of various ancient cultures, which may include Greece, Rome, the Ancient Near East, and Egypt, as well as other ancient worlds. Students will learn about ancient myth in its historical context to understand that images and tales that might seem like children’s bedtime stories were actually powerful forces that communicated the cultural values that shaped the history of how people lived and died: how they fell in love, judged criminals, conducted wars, constructed their racial and ethnic ideas, and thought about the origin and end of the world.

Prerequisite: ENG 101 and any Art course.

Learning Outcomes: Learning from the Past
1. Demonstrate knowledge of formative events, ideas, and works of art from ancient history
2. Analyze the significance of major developments in ancient history and thought
3. Differentiate multiple perspectives on the same subject

Assessment Tools and Grade Percentages:
- Assignment 1: Afterlife Imagery: 20%
- Assignment 2: Material Sources for Ancient Myth at the Metropolitan Museum: 20%
- Assignment 3: Modern Myth 20%
- Midterm Exam: 20%
- Final Exam: 20%
GRADES: Your grade is based on the assessment tools above. Grades are defined as follows.

- A Indicates EXCELLENCE in all aspects;
- B is considered GOOD, above average;
- C is considered FAIR, satisfactory, average;
- D is considered POOR, below average;
- F is FAILING, unacceptable work.

INC: Incomplete Grade requests are granted in extreme, documented circumstances only. All incomplete materials must be submitted within 30 days of the end of the semester.

EXTRA CREDIT: Your instructor in not obligated to offer extra credit. The term “extra credit” refers to optional work that may be assigned by the instructor to all students in addition to the required work for the course that all students must complete.

ASSIGNMENTS

REQUIRED READING: The class schedule, below, tells you what pages of the class reader to read before class. The class reader is located on Blackboard. You will be expected to read approximately 10 pages of primary source materials and 15 pages of secondary source materials for each class.

Midterm and Final Examinations: The examinations will assure that you have a basic understanding of the history of artworks discussed in class. Each examination will consist of three short essay questions that will require you to demonstrate that you can apply the fundamental concepts and methods of art history, such as the identification and analysis of subject matter, iconography, and style, to identify and discuss the relations between individual artworks and the societies in which they operated.

Assignment 1: Afterlife Imagery: We will extensively study in class the images associated with burial sites in the ancient world and will discuss how these images reflect ancient believes about the afterlife. This assignment will lead you to think about the ways in which burial images and beliefs about what happens after death have changed – and the ways in which they have remained the same. Visit either Green-Wood Cemetery, Woodlawn Cemetery, or another cemetery or burial place pre-approved by the instructor. Choose and photograph an image-rich monument, and then write at least a 2 page essay describing the imagery, explaining what it tells the viewer about the afterlife, and comparing the imagery and afterlife beliefs to those of one of the ancient cultures covered by our class. Attach your photographs to your essay. Use citations to indicate any information you have found in outside sources.

Assignment 2: Material Sources for Ancient Myth at the Metropolitan Museum: Visit the Metropolitan Museum of Art and take a self-guided field trip, completing a mythological “scavenger hunt” by following the instructions on a handout you will receive in class. Then find and photograph 1) a work of art that depicts a myth about a god or hero from a culture other than the cultures covered by our class and 2) another work of art from one of the cultures covered by our class that depicts a similar mythological story. Write at least a 2 page essay contrasting the way in which these artworks show the myth and the way in which their different viewers would have experienced or used the objects on which the myth is show. Attach your photographs to your essay. Use citations to indicate any information you have found in outside sources.

Assignment 3: Modern Myth: Choose a movie or another visual artwork that retells a myth from one of the cultures covered by our class (for example, the 1997 Disney movie “Hercules”). Write at least a 5 page essay comparing the modern version to the visual depictions of that myth in the originating culture, analyzing the changes made to the story in the modern version. Why you think these changes were made? How do the changes make the myth a better fit for modern culture? Use citations to indicate any information you have found in outside sources.

Student Responsibilities, Policies, and Resources

Americans with Disabilities Act Policy: Students with disabilities will be provided reasonable academic accommodations if determined eligible by the Office of Accessibility Services (OAS). Prior to granting disability accommodations in this course, the instructor must receive written verification of a student’s eligibility from the OAS which is located at L66 in the new building (212-237-8031). It is the student’s responsibility to initiate contact with the office and to follow the established procedures for having the accommodation notice sent to the instructor. (Source: Reasonable Accommodations: A Faculty Guide to Teaching College Students with Disabilities, 4th ed., City University of New York, p.3; http://www.jjay.cuny.edu/studentlife/Reasonable_Accommodations.pdf)

Attendance: Students are expected to attend all class meetings as scheduled. There will not be automatic penalizations for absences, but if you are not in class, you will lose opportunities to gain participation credit and will find it difficult to succeed in the course as a whole.

Plagiarism and Academic Integrity: Plagiarism is the presentation of someone else’s ideas, words, or artistic, scientific, or technical work as one’s own creation. Using the ideas or work of another is permissible only when the original author is identified. Paraphrasing and summarizing, as well as direct quotations, require citations to the original source. Plagiarism may be intentional or unintentional. Lack of dishonest intent does not necessarily absolve a student of responsibility for plagiarism. It is the student’s responsibility to recognize the difference between statements that are common knowledge (which do not require documentation) and restatements of the ideas of others. Paraphrase, summary, and direct quotation are acceptable forms of restatement, as long as the source is cited. Students who are unsure how and when to provide documentation are advised to consult with their instructors. The Library has free guides designed to help students with problems of documentation. (John Jay College Undergraduate Bulletin, p.

3. Rationale for the course (will be submitted to CUNY in the Chancellor’s Report). Why should this program offer this course? (Explain briefly, 1-3 paragraphs).

There are very few courses offered in the corrections specialization and none of them deal with race or racism. This is a major topic in prison studies that needs its own elective course in the specialization and in the program. At present, there is only one generic course about race and racism in the entire CRJ MA program, called Race and Crime in America, which cannot cover all the topics specific to race and incarceration.

The course originally numbered CRJ 737 has been inactive for some time and has not been offered for more than 20 years.

4. Degree requirements satisfied by the course:

Elective for the Corrections specialization.

Requirement for the proposed Advanced Certificate in Race and Criminal Justice

5. Has this course been taught on an experimental basis?

   Yes ___X___ No ______

   If yes, please provide the following:
   I. Semester(s) and Year(s): Spring 2015
   II. Teacher(s): Lucia Trimbur
   III. Enrollment(s): 11
   IV. Prerequisite(s): none

6. Learning Outcomes:
   a. What will students be able to demonstrate knowledge or understanding of or be able to do by the end of the course?
   1. Identify and critically analyze the arguments and assumptions about a range of punishments in discussion, presentations, and a final paper;
   2. Identify and critically analyze change of incarceration patterns over time in discussion, presentations, and a final paper;
   3. Explicate how today’s configurations of punishment and imprisonment relate to a longer history of race relations in discussion, presentations, and a final paper.
   4. Demonstrate graduate level writing in an essays.

   b. How do the course outcomes relate to the program’s outcomes?
   These outcomes goals are geared to educate students about race and racism in corrections, which is a critical issue in contemporary corrections and criminal justice, and to improve their graduate level literacy.

   c. Assessment: How will students demonstrate that they have achieved the learning outcomes of the course?

   Critical Reading and Discussion Questions: 25%
   Final Paper: 25%

Rev. Spring 2014

Presentation 1: 25%
Presentation 2: 25%

Presentations: Each student will present twice during the semester. You may choose which week you would like to present. Your tasks are to: (1) Provide a summary of what we have read and what we will be learning about/discussing. (i.e. a roadmap of the presentation); (2) Be the moderator. Make sure you are including everyone in the discussion and keeping the discussion on track; (3) Select two or three questions and use those to lead discussion; (4) Close out the discussion in the last few minutes of class (a summary of what has been discussed).

Seminar Paper: Each student will write a seminar paper on a topic of your choosing. The goal of the paper is to present a thorough review of the theory and research on your chosen topic.

7. Proposed texts and supplementary readings (including ISBNs):

Library resources for this course: Please consult with a member of the Library faculty before completing the following sections of this question. Please provide the name of the Librarian consulted below.

Larry Sullivan

8. Identify and assess the adequacy of available library resources
a. Databases
Sufficient.

b. Books, Journals and eJournals
Sufficient.

9. Identify recommended additional library resources

10. Estimate the cost of recommended additional library resources (For new courses and programs):

11. Please list any specific bibliographic indices/databases to which students will be directed for this course. (Please check the list of databases licensed by the library before answering this question).

12. Are current College resources (e.g. Computer labs, facilities, equipment) adequate to support this course?

   Yes __X________ No ____________

   If no, what resources will be needed? With whom have these resource needs been discussed?

13. Proposed instructors: Lucia Trimbur, Gail Garfield

14. Other resources needed to offer this course:

15. If the subject matter of the proposed course may conflict with existing or proposed courses in other programs, indicate action taken:

   No.

16. Syllabus

   Attach a sample syllabus for this course, which should be based on the College’s model syllabus, found at: [OGS curriculum website]

   The syllabus should include grading schemas and course policies. A class calendar with the following elements: a week-by-week listing of topics, readings with page numbers and all other assignments must be included. If this course has been taught on an experimental basis, an actual syllabus may be attached.

Racism, Punishment, and Prison

In the United States today, there are over two million people incarcerated. Black and Latino men comprise a disproportionate number of those detained; in fact, there are more black men under custodial supervision (prison, parole, probation) than were enslaved in 1850. This massive expansion of prisoners is often referred to as the “prison industrial complex,” and some scholars locate its roots in the long-standing anti-black racism that began with slavery and continued through Jim Crow and urban segregation. This course examines the prison industrial complex from its beginnings in slavery through to the contemporary moment of mass incarceration. We will consider whether our current patterns of imprisonment and punishment are a new expression of older systems of racial capitalism or something different. We start by examining the role of punishment during plantation slavery and move to other serious penalties, such as convict leasing and the penitentiary. Then we move to the rise of the carceral state in the twentieth and early twenty-first centuries, paying special attention to the role of political change and economic transformation in driving prison expansion. We conclude by examining some of the consequences of mass incarceration. Assignments include weekly discussion questions, two presentations, and a final term paper.

Learning Objectives

- Understand the forms of punishment used at important moments in US history and articulate how these punishments differed by race;
- Understand the distinct experiences of punishment for men and women of color;
- Understand the specific relationship between race and racism and punishment at various periods in time;
- Understand some of the consequences of mass incarceration today;
- Use theory to inform scholarly research.

Learning Outcomes

- Identify and critically analyze the arguments used to legitimate a range of punishments;
- Identify and critically analyze the assumptions about justice and deviance undergirding each punishment;
- Identify and critically analyze change in punishment over time;
- Explicate how today’s configurations of punishment and imprisonment relate to a longer history of race relations.

Attendance

Given that there is a graduate seminar, each student’s attendance and participation are essential.

Grading

- Critical Reading and Discussion Questions: 25%
- Final Paper: 25%
- Presentation 1: 25%
- Presentation 2: 25%

Assignments

1. Discussion Questions: Since this is a seminar course, it is essential that you do the reading for each class. You are expected to read all the texts closely and come to class prepared to discuss them critically. You must submit 3 discussion questions for each class, based on analyses of the texts. There should be a short introduction to the questions that indicate why this question is important. These questions will serve as the basis of discussion during some classes. These questions should be submitted to the entire class via Blackboard by 12am the day of class.

2. Presentations: Each student will present twice during the semester. You may choose which week you would like to present. Your tasks are to: (1) Provide a summary of what we have read and what we will be learning about/discussing, (i.e. a roadmap of the presentation); (2) Be the moderator. Make sure you are including everyone in the discussion and keeping the discussion

3. Rationale for the course (will be submitted to CUNY in the Chancellor’s Report). Why should this program offer this course? (Explain briefly, 1-3 paragraphs).

Rev. Spring 2014
Office of Graduate Studies
This course will address the gap between available academic training and the skills central to policy work through an approach that emphasizes substantive exposure to the world of policy advocacy and partnerships with highly effective policy advocacy organizations. The course will consist of lectures and guest lectures, reading and written assignments, data collection and site visits (e.g. court, public meetings, conferences, rallies, etc.). Such classroom-based training in research and advocacy is necessary to achieve the goals of the Tow Policy Advocacy Fellowship.

The overarching concern of the TPAF is to help address entrenched social problems. Doing so takes innovative thinking, sustained attention, long-term commitment, and adequate resources. It also requires gathering empirically valid evidence and sharing this information effectively. While training in these skills may be available to John Jay students in existing Master’s programs, ultimately, addressing social injustice requires more. It requires generating support for a cause and influencing public and policy-maker opinion. Unfortunately, training in this aspect of policy advocacy remains elusive. This course will therefore provide the necessary analytical and research skills to support the guidance and mentoring by experienced professionals Fellows will receive at their Host Sites.

Concern with successfully integrating students and maximizing their productivity is the basis of the proposed course. If students have some classroom training in policy analysis, in addition to other skills such as oral presentations and interviewing, they will be most able to play an active role in the work of the organization. And, above all, such training will facilitate actively engaging with the communities that given public policies affect.

The ultimate aim of the course is to help Fellows develop a broad set of skills that will enable them to not only develop empirically valid policy analysis and arguments, but will allow Fellows to communicate them effectively. This course will provide Fellows with an educational environment for integrating research methods, policy analysis, advocacy, and information technology course work to develop an in-depth understanding of public policy and problematic social issues.

The course has five modules, each with specific learning objectives:

1. Policy Analysis: defining a problem, establishing evaluative and analytical criteria, developing feasible policy alternatives, projecting outcomes, statistical literacy, program evaluation, cost-benefit analysis, trade-off assessment
2. Communication: writing a policy memo/brief/report, oral presentation skills, making an “elevator speech”
3. Leadership & Social Change: developing a capacity for leadership that is attuned to group dynamics, skilled in overcoming pitfalls of collaborative work, and focused on achieving short and long-term goals; training in identifying and overcoming common obstacles in policy change
4. Political Awareness: stakeholder analysis, political feasibility, power mapping
5. Research: finding, collecting, and analyzing high-quality data for advocacy; assessing the impact and outcome of the work; qualitative data skills (interviewing, survey writing, conducting a focus group); quantitative data skills (administrative data management and analysis, descriptive and basic inferential statistics); and multi-method research design.

4. Degree requirements satisfied by the course:

Rev. Spring 2014
Office of Graduate Studies
The course can fulfill elective credits in the MPA program.

5. Has this course been taught on an experimental basis?

   Yes ___ x ____  No _______

   If yes, please provide the following:

   I. Semester(s) and Year(s): Fall 2014 and Spring 2015
   II. Teacher(s): Karin Martin
   III. Enrollment(s): 8 students per semester
   IV. Prerequisite(s): Participation in the Tow Policy Advocacy Fellowship

6. Learning Outcomes:
   a. What will students be able to demonstrate knowledge or understanding of or be able to do by the end of the course?

   The course is intended to supplement the fieldwork experience that students through their participation in the Tow Policy Advocacy Fellowship to help fellows become effective policy advocates themselves.

   At the end of the course, students should be able to:
   - Develop testable research questions and hypotheses
   - Identify primary and secondary data sources
   - Present empirical policy analysis findings
   - Write an empirically-sound policy memo suitable for public dissemination
   - Understand the process of public advocacy
   - Comprehend and evaluate policy arguments
   - Formulate empirically valid and articulate policy briefs, memos, and reports
   - Clearly and persuasively communicate policy memos and reports in oral and written formats
   - Work in a collaborative team setting with people of diverse skills and backgrounds to be an innovative and effective policy advocate

   b. How do the course outcomes relate to the program’s outcomes?

   The mission of the Master of Public Administration Program in Public Policy and Administration at John Jay College of Criminal Justice is to prepare students for careers in public agencies and independent organizations and to advance the study of Public Policy and Administration through scholarly and applied research and community service. It follows that by providing classroom instruction closely linked to placement in a host site, where Fellows put into practice the research skills they are learning, the proposed course directly advances the mission of the MPA program.

   c. Assessment: How will students demonstrate that they have achieved the learning outcomes of the course?
Students will demonstrate having achieved the learning objectives in a variety of ways. There will be weekly written assignments that will assess student comprehension of core concepts from the readings, lectures, and class discussion. Students will demonstrate their research and analysis skills by writing a policy memo (7-10 pages) over the course of the first semester and then writing a policy report over the course of the second semester (20-30 pages). They will demonstrate their communication skills by giving oral presentations both semesters. Importantly, feedback from the host site supervisors will factor into assessment of skill, since this is where students will have the opportunity to put into practice all of the teachings from the course.

COURSE DESCRIPTION
This course is a two-semester class designed to prepare and support Fellows’ work in an organization that is effectively advocating for policy change. To that end, the overarching goal of the course is to help you develop a broad set of skills that will enable you to not only develop empirically valid policy analysis and arguments, but will allow you to communicate them effectively. This course will provide Fellows with an educational environment for integrating research methods, policy analysis, advocacy, and information technology course work to develop an in-depth understanding of public policy and problematic social issues.

The course has five modules, each with specific learning objectives:

1. Policy Analysis: defining a problem, establishing evaluative and analytical criteria, developing feasible policy alternatives, projecting outcomes, statistical literacy, program evaluation, cost-benefit analysis, trade-off assessment

2. Communication: writing a policy memo/brief/report, oral presentation skills, making an “elevator speech”

3. Leadership & Social Change: developing a capacity for leadership that is attuned to group dynamics, skilled in overcoming pitfalls of collaborative work, and focused on achieving short and long-term goals; training in identifying and overcoming common obstacles in policy change

4. Political Awareness: stakeholder analysis, political feasibility, power mapping

5. Research: finding, collecting, and analyzing high-quality data for advocacy; assessing the impact and outcome of the work; qualitative data skills (interviewing, survey writing, conducting a focus group); quantitative data skills (administrative data management and analysis, descriptive and basic inferential statistics); and multi-method research design

ANTICIPATED COURSE OUTCOMES
At the end of the course, students should be able to:

- Develop testable research questions and hypotheses
- Identify primary and secondary data sources
- Present empirical policy analysis findings
- Write an empirically-sound policy memo suitable for public dissemination
- Understand the process of public advocacy
- Comprehend and evaluate policy arguments

Rev. Spring 2014
Office of Graduate Studies
- Formulate empirically valid and articulate policy briefs, memos, and reports
- Clearly and persuasively communicate policy memos and reports in oral and written formats
- Work in a collaborative team setting with people of diverse skills and backgrounds to be an innovative and effective policy advocate

Course Communications

All e-mail communication will be to the jjay e-mail account associated with Blackboard. You must check this account regularly to keep up with any course announcements. I will not use your gmail or other personal accounts.

We will be using the Blackboard course site for some readings, for downloading and uploading assignments, and for other communications as needed. Please be aware that I will use it to send e-mails about the course as well; they will appear in your in-box from me.

We are a diverse group of adults working together to develop your analytical and communication skills. To become empathetic, ethical and effective policy advocates, you will need to be comfortable working with, working in and communicating in diverse, often highly charged political environments.

An over-arching objective for our class meetings is to have an environment wherein a wide variety of opinions can be freely voiced and a critical but constructive dialogue flourishes. In order to have a fruitful, informative discussion, you must come to class having both read and thought about all of the assigned readings for the day. Discussing and engaging with the reading material is an essential aspect of your learning.

Your fellow students are an important resource in the learning process. As we explore various domestic and international policy issues throughout this course, we will be delving into many controversial issues. This is an excellent opportunity to learn from each other and to broaden our perspectives. In order to achieve a comfortable discussion environment for all, I ask you to abide by the following rules:

- Support free speech. Everyone in the classroom is free to express opinions and ask questions without fear of censure from other section members. You can disagree with an opinion without insulting the opinion holder. You should express your opinions, as long as they are well-founded, even if (perhaps, especially if) you think that none of your classmates will agree. Class will be very boring and unrewarding if we all agree with each other all the time.

- In discussions, be aware of directing comments toward your peers, in addition to the instructor. Doing so will help foster conversations that are both educational and engaging.

- You are encouraged to draw on your personal experiences in New York City and elsewhere and in your work experience when thinking about and analyzing the readings and course content. Our lived experiences are fundamental to our professional development.
COURSE POLICIES

You should read or listen to the local and national news daily. The NY Times, Washington Post, WNYC, WBAI (e.g. “Democracy Now”), NY1, the BBC, Al-Jazeera, ProPublica, and the PBS Newshour are all reliable, quality news resources. You are encouraged to share relevant news items in the Discussion Forum on Blackboard.

Readings not in the required texts will be available on Blackboard.

Students with Disabilities
Qualified students with disabilities will be provided reasonable academic accommodations if determined eligible by the Office of Accessibility Services (OAS). Prior to granting disability accommodations in this course, the instructor must receive written verification of a student’s eligibility from the OAS which is located at L66 in the new building (212-237-8031). It is the student’s responsibility to initiate contact with the office and to follow the established procedures for having the accommodation notice sent to the instructor.

Statement of College Policy about Plagiarism
Plagiarism is the presentation of someone else’s ideas, words or artistic, scientific or technical work as one’s own creation. Using the ideas or work of another is permissible only when the original author is identified. Paraphrasing and summarizing, as well as direct quotations, require citations to the original source.

Plagiarism is the act of presenting another person’s ideas, research or writings as your own. The following are some examples of plagiarism, but by no means is it an exhaustive list:
• Copying another person’s actual words without the use of quotation marks and footnotes attributing the words to their source
• Presenting another person’s ideas or theories in your own words without acknowledging the source
• Using information that is not common knowledge without acknowledging the source
• Failing to acknowledge collaborators on homework and laboratory assignments

Internet plagiarism includes submitting downloaded term papers or part of term papers, paraphrasing or copying information from the Internet without citing the source, and “cutting and pasting” from various sources without proper attribution. (From the John Jay College of Criminal Justice Graduate Bulletin, p. 89)

Plagiarism may be intentional or unintentional. Lack of dishonest intent does not necessarily absolve a student of responsibility for plagiarism.

It is the student’s own responsibility to recognize the difference between statements that are common knowledge (which do not require documentation) and restatements of the ideas of others.

Rev. Spring 2014
Office of Graduate Studies
Paraphrase, summary, and direct quotation are acceptable forms of restatement, as long as the source is cited.

Students who are unsure how and when to provide documentation are advised to consult with their instructors. The Library has free guides designed to help students with problems of documentation.

Citation Style

To document your sources, refer to the American Psychological Association (APA) style guide for how to list author, title, publisher, date, and other details about the source you are using. A useful resource for APA formatting can be found at:

http://www.library.cornell.edu/resrch/citmanage/apa

Formatting

All papers should be in the standard format: size 12-point serif font, such as Garamond or Palatino, with one inch margins on all sides, typed. Because assignments are based on word-count and not page length, you may decide on single- or double-spacing. My personal preference is for single-spaced to reduce paper use, but feel free to double-space for editing purposes. If necessary, always use footnotes,1 not endnotes.1

Save all of your work

Computer failure is a reality and not a viable excuse. Please be sure to back up all electronic copies of your work on an external hard drive or flash drive or by e-mailing your work to your own e-mail address.

REQUIRED TEXTS & READINGS:

Grading

Given the nature and size of the course, attendance at all class meetings is mandatory. Please plan your schedule accordingly. Absences will be excused only for unforeseeable emergencies and medical reasons. If you need to miss class, it is your responsibility to:

1. Notify the instructor as soon as possible.
2. Submit any assignments on the due date.

Your grade will be assigned as follows:

Expedited Application for Registration of a New Certificate or Advanced Certificate Program

This application is for New York degree-granting institutions seeking to register a new Certificate or Advanced Certificate program. Please download and save this file, enter the requested information, and submit to the State Education Department.

Note that public institutions should use the appropriate SUNY/CUNY proposal submission forms in lieu of the attached forms and submit proposals to SUNY/CUNY Central Administration. The expedited review option is not available to programs intended to prepare candidates for teacher certification or professional licensure.

1. Program Description and Purpose

   a) Provide a brief description of the program as it will appear in the institution’s catalog.

   Answer: The Advanced Certificate in Race and Criminal Justice is an interdisciplinary program. All courses are offered by the Master of Arts in Criminal Justice program. The program offers advanced instruction on contemporary law and history of racial oppression in four critical areas of expertise: law, criminology, policing, and penology. The four required courses are: (1) CRJ 736 Civil Rights and Civil Liberties, (2) CRJ 738 Race and Crime in America, (3) CRJ 757 Police and the Community, and (4) CRJ 737 Racism, Punishment, and Prison in US. The Advanced Certificate in Race and Criminal Justice is appropriate for students who wish to engage in research, become public or private security professionals at local, state or federal levels, or join U.S. agencies concerned with civil rights and criminal justice. This is a stand-alone certificate at the post-baccalaureate level. A student may pursue the advanced certificate independent of a master’s program or while pursuing a John Jay master’s degree. Students who successfully complete the program are awarded a New York State Education Department certificate.

   b) List educational and (if appropriate) career objectives.

   Answer: Students will (1) demonstrate knowledge of US law, policing, penology, and criminology as they relate to racism and discrimination, (2) apply professional analysis and ethics to case studies, (3) use professional analysis and ethics to design interventions to reduce racism in and through criminal justice systems.

c) How does the program relate to the institution’s mission and/or master plan?

Answer: John Jay College of Criminal Justice of The City University of New York is a “liberal arts college dedicated to education, research and service in the fields of criminal justice, fire science and related areas of public safety and public service.” An Advanced Certificate in Race and Criminal Justice is directly related to John Jay’s mission of providing higher educational offerings related to the real needs of criminal justice.

d) Describe the role of faculty in the program’s design.

Answer: Most of the courses for this program were developed by faculty over time and have been part of the CJ MA program for many years. After an extensive discussion the faculty voted to create this four-course advanced certificate to provide a focused study on race and policing, penology, and criminology.

e) Describe the input by external partners, if any (e.g., employers and institutions offering further education).

Answer:

f) What are the anticipated Year 1 through Year 5 enrollments?

Answer: Year 1: 10 students; Year 2: 20 students; Year 3: 30 students; Year 4: 30 students; Year 5: 30 students.

2. Sample Program Schedule

Complete the sample program schedule (Table 1) for the first full cycle of the program (e.g., two semesters for a traditional 24 credit-hour Certificate program).

- If the program will be offered through a nontraditional schedule, provide a brief explanation of the schedule, including its impact on financial aid eligibility.
- For existing courses, submit a copy of the catalog description. Provide syllabi for all new courses. Syllabi should include a course description and identify course credit, objectives, topics, student outcomes, texts/resources, and the basis for determining grades.

3. Faculty

a) Complete the faculty tables that describe full-time faculty (Table 2), part-time faculty (Table 3), and faculty to be hired (Table 4), as applicable. Faculty curricula vitae should be provided only on request.

b) What is the institution’s definition of “full-time” faculty?

Answer: Full-time faculty are professors in tenured or tenure-track positions and lecturers in lines that receive Certificates of Continuing Employment after 5 years.

4. Financial Resources and Instructional Facilities

a) Summarize the instructional facilities and equipment committed to ensure the success of the program.

Answer: No new financial resources will be needed for this program. In particular, the college library collection is well suited for a criminal investigation certificate program.

b) Complete the new resources table (Table 5).

5. Admissions

a) List all program admission requirements (or note if identical to the institution’s admission requirements).
Answer: Applicants must meet the following admissions requirements: (1) baccalaureate degree, and (2) satisfactory letters of reference. Students currently enrolled in any of John Jay’s graduate programs are eligible to take courses toward this certificate.

b) Describe the process for evaluating exceptions to those requirements.
Answer: (1) initial screening by officials of the John Jay Office of Graduate Admissions, (2) admit/reject decision by the faculty members who evaluate graduate applications.

c) How will the institution encourage enrollment by persons from groups historically underrepresented in the discipline or occupation?
Answer: John Jay has long been committed to attracting students from traditionally underrepresented minorities. Our graduate admissions office engages in outreach at colleges with concentrations of traditionally underrepresented students.

6. Academic Support Services

Summarize the academic support services available to help students succeed in the program.

Answer: (1) Faculty members hold regular office hours to confer with students. (2) John Jay’s Writing Center offers support for students who have difficulty writing English prose.

7. Credit for Experience

If this program will grant substantial credit for learning derived from experience, describe the methods of evaluating the learning and the maximum number of credits allowed.

Answer: No credits granted for experience.

8. Program Assessment and Improvement

Summarize the plan for periodic evaluation of the new program, including a timetable and the use of data to inform program improvement.

Answer: The criminal justice program is subject to sustained five-year review by outside observers. Statistics about this certificate program will be evaluated by these observers. The next evaluation will be conducted in 2015. Program reviews are data-based. In anticipation of this five-year review, the program will begin to maintain data on (1) enrollment in the certificate program, (2) the relationship between applicants’ records and their performance in the program, and (3) certificate completion/graduation rates.

9. Transfer Programs

If the program will be promoted as preparing students for transfer to a program at another institution, provide a copy of an articulation agreement with the institution.

Rationale
In the conversion to CUNYfirst, the course catalog was coded according to the bulletin entries for graduate courses. As a result, several thesis, internship, and exam courses that were traditionally graded P/F under SIMS were coded as graded A-F. This proposal officially designates these courses as P/F, and, if passed, a designation “Graded P/F” will be added to the official bulletin entries for all those courses listed here.

The proposed change does not affect any other course attributes.
