Re: Smart on Crime Innovations Conference

John Jay College of Criminal Justice will be hosting our second Smart on Crime Innovations Conference on September 25th and 26th. Last year, our primary goal was to continue the momentum for criminal justice reform. This year, our goal is to move the reform conversation forward, changing the narrative by tackling tough questions that are often avoided. This is a wonderful opportunity to bring John Jay students, faculty, and staff together with elected officials and criminal justice leaders. Contributing to these powerful conversations speaks directly to our College's mission and embodies the essence of who we are at John Jay. We are planning the sessions to coincide with class schedules, allowing professors to use the conference as an immersive learning opportunity for their students. Look for more information in the coming weeks.

Thank you,
