

Blackboard Course Export

CUNY will retire Blackboard on December 18th, 2025, after which it will no longer be accessible. While CUNY will maintain course archives as required under university policies and by applicable law, faculty may wish to download from Blackboard personal copies of their course content before that date.

Please note, although it is possible to import Blackboard course export files into other Learning Management Systems such as Brightspace, for best results, the Office of Digital Learning LMS Support team recommends downloading individual files from Blackboard and recreating courses in the new LMS in their entirety.

ODL LMS Support recommends faculty use the Export Course function to retain personal course copies. The Blackboard Export Course feature creates a ZIP file of your course content that you can import into other LMS courses, including documents, quizzes, and assignments.

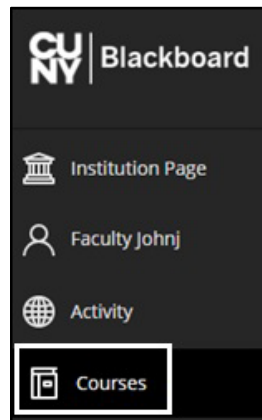

The Export Course feature does not include any users, user interactions with the course, or student data. Course archives containing student data are not recommended to retain personal copies of course content as course archives containing student data are subject to university and Federal data, privacy, and security policies and should not be stored on non-CUNY storage platforms.

Access Blackboard

1. Go to <https://www.cuny.edu/> and select Login in the upper right. Select Brightspace/Blackboard from the drop-down menu. On the right-hand side of the Brightspace/Blackboard page, select Login to Blackboard.
