PROFILE

Hello! My name is Jenna Bosco, and I am in my third year at John Jay College of Criminal Justice as a Forensic Science major specializing in Criminalistics. I began my college career as a Biology major at Daemen College located in upstate New York, but after some research and soul searching I decided to switch to a Forensic Science major and transfer to John Jay. I have always enjoyed the sciences, but it wasn't until I began college that I realized how much I truly enjoyed studying and learning about them. I am extremely excited to begin the second half of my major and look forward to working with everyone in the Math and Science Resource Center.

Outside of school, I really enjoy reading (especially fantasy) and drawing, so I am always eager for some good book recommendations.
