Please summarize the result of your consultation with other department(s) or program(s) being affected by these changes: We have consulted with the Department Chair in the Sciences and with the main course instructor; they both agree that this will allow students to have more choices in their required courses and the minor.

UCASC suggests prior consultation with academic department chairs, UCASC representatives, and major or minor coordinators of affected departments (coordinators can be found in the UG Bulletin http://www.jjay.cuny.edu/college-bulletins, a list of UCASC members can be found at: http://www.jjay.cuny.edu/members)
9. Please attach the current bulletin information for the program reflecting the proposed changes. (Kathy Killoran (kkilloran@jjay.cuny.edu) or Kristina Hardy (khardy@jjay.cuny.edu) will provide you with a copy in Word format upon request.)
Environmental Justice Minor

The Environmental Justice minor educates students about the need to provide for human well-being while conserving the natural resources and ecological balance necessary to meet the needs of current and future generations. Using an interdisciplinary framework, the minor introduces students to the interdependent problems of sustainability such as climate change, social, economic and environmental inequalities, pollution and public health concerns that are affecting our city, society, and planet today. Students of the minor will learn the importance of working towards sustainable development and the equitable distribution of environmental benefits and harms that constitutes environmental justice. Through the minor’s interdisciplinary approach, students will develop an understanding of the intricate networks that link together people, cultures, societies, and environments. In the process, they will build the critical thinking and communication skills necessary to share their understanding of the complexities of sustainability, to enter the increasing number of careers and graduate programs requiring these multidisciplinary skills, and to become more effective contributors to society.

Learning Outcomes. Students will:

- Understand the basic concepts, issues, and debates surrounding sustainability, sustainable development, and environmental justice.
- Understand how different academic disciplines approach and contribute knowledge to topics related to Sustainability and Environmental Justice, such as environmental political and economic initiatives, social movements, chemical processes, urban planning, artistic works, and ethical considerations of policies and behaviors.
- Apply such analytical skills as qualitative and quantitative reasoning and critical thinking to interpret a broad array of problems and conditions effecting the environment and human habitats.
- Think critically about sustainability and environmental justice issues in society, such as global climate change, pollution, environmental racism, the scarcity of natural resources, and public health concerns resulting from environmental conditions.
- Analyze best practices and policies for sustainability, reflect on how to use them in their everyday lives, and understand their implications for various communities and groups (racial, ethnic, national, class, gender, etc.).

Rationale. The world around us seems to be changing faster and faster, and in ways that are becoming more and more unpredictable and difficult to understand. Among the many phenomena that people in academia, government, the health industry, private business, and other fields are trying to make sense of is our environment and the limits of sustainability. The majority of scientists are attributing strange weather patterns to global warming, while other researchers are identifying how social, political, and economic inequalities are leading to disparities in such environmental matters as water and air quality. Some citizens are forming social movements to correct injustices occurring in society and to create “sustainable” ways of living, while others investigate environmental crimes and search for alternative sources of energy. Through an approach that uses multiple disciplines, the Sustainability and Environmental Justice minor aims to provide students with an understanding of these and other important issues affecting our world. Since issues of sustainability and environmental problems are increasingly becoming a part of our daily lives, the legal and health industries, law enforcement, government, and the non-profit and private sectors are all restructuring and expanding to address these concerns. The minor in Sustainability and Environmental Justice will complement and enrich students’ studies at the College by informing them about the diverse frameworks employed to discuss and analyze these problems, and, thus better prepare them for a world in which changing environment is a fundamental aspect of everyday life.

Undergraduate Academic Program Revision Form

When completed email the proposal form in a word processed format for UCASC consideration and scheduling to kkilloran@jjay.cuny.edu.

1. Date submitted: May 19, 2021

2. Department or program proposing these revisions:
   a. Name and contact information of proposer(s): Richard Haw
   b. Email address of proposer: rhaw@jjay.cuny.edu
   c. Phone number: 212-237-8076

3. Name of major, minor or certificate program being revised: Minor in Interdisciplinary Studies

4. Department curriculum committee or other governance body (for interdisciplinary programs) which has approved these changes: Department of Interdisciplinary Studies
   a. Please provide the meeting date for approval: May 3, 2021
   b. Name of department chair or major/minor coordinators approving this proposal: Katie Gentile and Richard Haw

5. Please describe the curriculum changes you are proposing:
   (narrative or bullet points are acceptable as long as there is adequate explanation)

   At present, students can apply one 100 level ISP class to the minor if they have completed one semester in the Interdisciplinary Studies Freshman Program. This changes allows students to take one 100 level class to the minor regardless.

6. Please provide a rationale for the changes:
   (narrative format to go to CUNY and NYSED reports)

   The above named rule discriminates against students who did not come to the Minor in Interdisciplinary Studies through the Freshman Program. Removing this rule will allow all students to take one 100 level course in the electives portion of the minor and will bring it into line with most other minors at the college, almost all of which allow students to take 100 level classes. Fewer rules and more choices make for a better student experience.

7. How do these proposed changes affect other academic programs or departments?
   a. Which program(s) or department(s) will be affected? None
8. Please summarize the result of your consultation with other department(s) or program(s) being affected by these changes:

Interdisciplinary Studies Minor

Description. The field of Interdisciplinary Studies recognizes that we live in a complex and interrelated world. This minor introduces students to the practices of interdisciplinarity: using critical methods and bodies of knowledge from multiple disciplines to understand real-world issues and problems. A sophisticated comprehension of serious topics – such as sexual violence, mass incarceration, poverty, racial and economic inequality, environmental degradation, technological change, epidemics, or global migration, for example – requires analysis of dimensions that include the cultural, historical, political, psychological, social, gender, and economic. Through a pedagogy centered on active learning, students in the Minor in Interdisciplinary Studies develop critical thinking and analytical skills that prepare them to tackle the difficult topics and advanced work required in law and graduate schools and high-level careers.

Learning outcomes. Students will:

- Read, write, and communicate orally in response to a wide variety of disciplinary and interdisciplinary texts.
- Analyze and synthesize ideas and information from multiple disciplinary sources and perspectives.
- Identify, articulate, and reflect upon theoretical and methodological differences among disciplines across the arts, humanities, and sciences.
- Select and apply appropriate tools from two or more disciplines to significant questions, issues, or problems that would benefit from interdisciplinary analysis.
- Construct knowledge together and collaborate effectively and respectfully.

Minor coordinator. Professor Richard Haw, Department of Interdisciplinary Studies (212.237.8076, rhaw@jjay.cuny.edu)

Experiential learning opportunities. The Interdisciplinary Studies courses are rooted in experiential learning where students engage in interactive classroom exercises, independent research projects, fieldtrips and service and learning opportunities that transcend the classroom. Students should anticipate being engaged, enlivened and compelled to be active participants in their learning experiences. In recent years, first year students have taken several field trips around NYC and visited the Eastern State Penitentiary in Philadelphia. Students have conducted community-based surveys of food deserts, voting patterns, and have created self-guided tours of major museums, landmarks, and historic neighborhoods. Students have opportunities to interact with guest speakers and performers and pursue internships integrating academics and action with the Vera Institute of Justice, state and city elected officials, and social justice organizations.

Requirements. The minor in Interdisciplinary Studies requires a total of 18 credits of which 3 credits are required and 15 credits are electives. A maximum of two courses can overlap with a student’s major, other minor or program.

Course Revision Form

This form should be used for revisions to course titles, prefixes/numbers, course descriptions, and/or prerequisites. For small course content changes please also submit a syllabus. For inclusion in the CUNY Pathways General Education program at John Jay please include a syllabus and the CUNY Common Core or John Jay College Option Form.

Date Submitted: April 28, 2021

1. Name of Department or Program: Latinx Literature Minor

2. Contact information of proposer(s):

   Name(s): Richard Perez & Belinda Rincon
   Email(s): rperez@jjay.cuny.edu; brincon@jjay.cuny.edu
   Phone number(s): 646.557.4408 & 212.237.8750

3. Current number and title of course: LIT 357 Violence of Language: U.S. Latinx Street Literature

4. Current course description:

This course will explore the ways in which "street life" creates avenues for self social and historical knowledge through literary expression. The narrative challenge for U.S. Latinx writers is to take a language of the everyday and reshape it into a literary form. Several questions will impel and inform our readings: How does street language translate into poetics? What constitutes knowledge in and of the street? Where does street literature fit within canonical American aesthetics?

   a. Number of credits: 3
   b. Number of class hours (please specify if the course has lab hours): 3
   c. Current prerequisites: ENG 201

5. Describe the nature of the revision (what are you changing?):

We are changing the name of the course from LIT 357 Violence of Language: U.S. Latinx Street Literature to LIT 357 Latinx Street Literature. The course will keep its current course number, LIT 357. We are also revising the learning outcomes for the course and the course description.
6. Rationale for the proposed change(s):

The existing name is somewhat confusing to students. Because it includes the word “language” in the title, students might feel that it has to do with the languages of English, Spanish, or bilingualism. Furthermore, the course does more than focus on violence, but also community-building, cultural affirmation, and creativity (for example, through discussions of murals and contemporary music genres, like hip hop and reggaeton). For this reason, it makes sense to change the title to a more recognizable Latinx Street Literature to make it easier and more compelling to students. While the content and assignments will remain the same, we are revising the learning outcomes to better describe the skills and knowledge that we want students to gain in that course. We are also small revisions to the course description to make it more attractive to students.

7. Text of proposed revisions (use NA, not applicable, where appropriate):

   a. Revised course description:

   This course explores how Latinx writers develop a street sensibility that creates avenues for self, social, and historical knowledges through literary expression. The narrative challenge for U.S. Latinx writers is to take a language of the street that involves violence, gang life, poverty, hypermasculinity, and addiction and reshape it into a literary form. Several questions will inform our readings: How does street language translate into poetics? Where does street literature fit within canonical American aesthetics?

   b. Revised course title: Latinx Street Literature

   c. Revised short title (the original can be found on CUNYFirst, max of 30 characters including spaces!): Latinx Street Lit

   d. Revised learning outcomes:

   1. Students will appraise scholarship related to urban studies of spatiality, gentrification, and history of the ghetto, to understand how Latinx street literature addresses institutional processes of physical and social marginalization in the built environment.

   2. Students will evaluate the interconnections of race, gender, sexuality, class, and nationality and their formative impact on Latinx street literature.

   3. Students will employ close reading skills to interpret tone, point of view, figurative language, and plot structure in their analysis of street literature.

   4. Students will differentiate experiences of urban life from diverse Latinx ethnic communities and distinct geographic locations across the United States.

   5. Students will write persuasive, thesis-driven essays that follow standard conventions of writing including grammatical constructions, appropriate vocabulary, and proper citation.

Approved by UCASC, Oct 15, to College Council, Nov 11, 2021
e. Revised assignments and activities related to revised outcomes: No change, readings and activities will remain the same.

f. Revised number of credits: NA

g. Revised number of hours: NA

h. Revised prerequisites: NA

8. Enrollment in past semesters: enrollment has ranged from 10 to 20 students.

9a. Will this course be offered as part of the new JJ General Education program (CUNY Common Core or College Option)?

   No _X___       Yes _____   If yes, please indicate the area:

10. Does this change affect any other departments?

   ___X__ No       _____ Yes (if so what consultation has taken place)?

The English Department Curriculum Committee reviewed this form and provided written feedback on April 22, 2021. The committee wondered if our revision of the learning objectives constituted a change in the course content, to discern whether a sample syllabus was required.

“The question here is whether revising LOs counts as content change constituted a change. Are the LO revisions changing anything about how the course is conducted or the work done?” Our response is that it does not. The revised LOs are meant to give a more precise description of the skills and knowledge we want students to develop in the course.

11. Date of Department or Program Curriculum Committee approval: April 2021

12. Name of Department Chair(s) or Program Coordinator(s) approving this revision proposal:

   Jay Paul Gates, English Department
   José Luis Morín, Chair, Latin American and Latinx Studies Department
